

Where Did You Go?

By Meghan Everette

Letting runners, teachers, and aides know exactly where your class is can be both helpful and safe. Schedules may change daily, so being able to update your information quickly and easily is key.

Make a simple door sign to keep others apprised of your whereabouts. A circular clip allows easy modification when you have new or different locations. Put a student helper in charge of changing the sign each time you leave the room, and attach an easy-release hook for relocating when necessary.

Check out even more uses for the popular sticky hook in blogger Alycia Zimmerman's classroom.